a.natalie_jones_ Some photos I've taken during my Tuesday and Wednesday visit to @transkidsdeservebetter's occupation of the EHRC premises building by Vauxhall. Last night there was an open mic night - which involved poetry and singing. Please show up in solidarity if you can! 🇬🇧 🇮🇪 feckcops These kids never fail to astound me. Their occupation of the so-called Equalities and Human Rights Commission (EHRC) this week is just their latest in a long campaign to demand better from the Government for trans kids. The immense courage, care, and skilful co-ordination they demonstrate at every action put most adults I know to shame. Witnessing these kids at work warms my heart and gives me so much hope for the future 💖

The world is a terrifying place right now, especially for trans people. Now the entire establishment, from the pathetic centre-left to the hateful right has been captured by FARTs (feminism-appropriating radical transphobes), it can feel like the whole world is against us. When the very bodies set up to defend us become the same bodies issuing guidance to strip away our rights, exclude us and expose us to hate-fuelled violence, it's never been clearer we cannot rely on liberal institutions for protection. Keir Starmer, Wes Streeting and the so-called Equalities and Human Rights Commission are drowning in trans blood 💧

Never has it been clearer, we protect ourselves. We will keep pushing, keep fighting, keep taking action until every single trans person has the safety, dignity and healthcare they deserve. Trans kids deserve so much better than this pathetic spineless shitshow of a Government. We will never stop fighting for their future and ours. For a better world, one of dignity, love and care for all 💜💛💖

When trans rights are under attack, what do we do?
Stand up, fight back! 🍷

Not the cops, not the state.
We decide our own fate! 💖
